

My Last Day as a Marquette Student

“At Marquette, I embraced cultural differences, met some great friends, and gained invaluable knowledge. I am proud of the decision I made four years ago.”

Today is the last day of the Marquette University Class of 2021 Commencement Weekend. It marks the formal end of my Marquette journey. While I do not have the chance to join many of my friends met in these four years to celebrate graduation, I sincerely hope everyone of them a successful life after college.

Over the past four years, I embraced cultural differences, met some great friends, and gained invaluable knowledge. I am proud of the decision I made four years ago. As I conclude my Marquette journey, I am ready for the next chapter in my life.

Thank you to all my friends, professors, and parents for their support. Let us meet in the next captivating story.

Cheers!
